UNDERGRADUATE READING LIST

Iris Mack's Book Recommendations:

"It is a painful eye-opener as to what is going on in American schools." --on The Shame of the Nation

Energy Derivatives: Pricing and Risk Management by Les Clewlow and Chris Strickland

This is a great book for anyone interested in energy derivatives. I have referred to it often in my work at various financial institutions.

The Shame of the Nation: The Restoration of Apartheid Schooling in America by Jonathan Kozol It is a painful eye-opener as to what is going on in American schools.

Galloway's Book On Running by Jeff Galloway

I used this book to train for several road races -- including two marathons. My goal is to start using it again to train for a few more marathons.

Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy

I have read this book all the way through several times since childhood. I also study it in parts each day for spiritual food. It is my main source of inspiration.

Various novels by Danielle Steele

I discovered Steele's books several years ago while vacationing on the French Riviera. I've read about 50 of them since then. Steele is not only a prolific author but also a great businesswoman.

Iris Mack
Florida International

Biographical info: Iris Mack was the second African-American woman to earn a PhD in applied mathematics from Harvard University. In addition, she earned an executive MBA in the Sloan Fellows Program at London Business School; an MS in applied mathematics from the University of California at Berkeley; and a dual BS in mathematics and mathematical physics from Vassar College.
